THE CONFESSION OF FAITH.

SERMON ON THE STANDARDS OF THE PRESBYTERIAN FAITH.

Dr. Smith Gives a Wonderfully Clear and Concise Presentation of an Interesting Subject.

A very large congregation heard Rev. Dr. E. W. Smith at the First Presbyterian church yesterday morning on the Westminster Confession of Faith. The sermon is regarded as a wonderfully clear and concise presentation of the standards of the Presbyterian church. If there was a Presbyterian present whose faith was wavering, or whose mind was confused in regard to any doctrinal point, such an one was strengthened and reassured. On the other hand, if there were those present who held views in opposition to those expressed in the teachings of the Presbyterian Church, there was nothing in the sermon to offend such persons.

Dr. Smith based his remarks on the text found in First Thessalonians, 5 : 21: "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good." He said in part:

"The Presbyterian Church, as every student knows, has been the martyr church of history. The sword and fagot have been laid aside, but our church maintains its martyr pre-eminence by continuing to enjoy the peculiar enmity of the world, the flesh and the devil. An acute observer has truly said that every heresy in doctrine or in morals sooner or later works itself into a fury against Calvinism.

The stardards of our Church are the Westminster Shorter Catechism, the Westminster Larger Catechism and the Westminster Confession of Faith. They do not treat of separate divisions of doctrines, but each contains in itself a complete statement of our entire doctrinal system. The system of the Confession of Faith is the identical system in the Shorter Catechism, the only difference being that the latter is more condensed and is cast into the form of questions and answers. This will explode one of the inumerable errors of which secular writers are guilty in their criticisms of our church. * * *

"The system of doctrine found in the standards is called Calvinistic, not because it originated with Calvin (it originated with the writers of the Bible), but because Calvin, next to St. Paul and St. Augustine, was the greatest expounder of the system. Our doctrinal formularies are called Westminster standards because the famous assembly of divines that framed them held their sessions in England's great Abbey of Westminster. They numbered about 130 and their labors extended over a period of more than five and one-half years, during which time they held about 1,200 sessions. They met in 1643, at a period when the human intellect seemed to have reached the very zenith of its power. These divines were contemporary with Shakespeare and Bacon. * * * It will seem no exaggeration to say that for force and fulness of thought, for clearness, compactness and force of statement, the work of the Westminster divines is worthy to stand beside these other products of the human intellect at its flood-tide. There are three things which, in addition to their genius and learning, must commend that assembly to our admiration:

"One is the amazing thoroughness with which they performed their work. * * * It may be said that there has never met together a body of men more competent for their special work. * * * Many of them, before the assembly met, had prepared catechisms of great excellence for the instruction of the people. These furnished a basis on which to begin their work, and then they had to assist them all the great catechisms of the reformers—the catechisms of Luther, Calvin of Ursinus, and of a number of others. And they did their work most laboriously and carefully. * * * Not a word was allowed a place in the standards until it had been submitted to the closest scrutiny and had proved itself to be just the right word to express the meaning intended. It is probable that there is not another catechism in existence on which one-tenth the time, and labor and ability, and learning was expended that was employed in the production of these two with which God has so highly favored our denomination. They are the work not of one man, as Luther's or Calvin's; nor of two men, as the Heidelburg catechism was; nor of four, as was the catchism of the Church of Rome; but they are the product of five years of most earnest deliberations of the whole Westminster assembly. So that we may be assured that in these three manuals, each containing all the essential truths of scripture, we have the finished product of the most conclentious efforts of the most competent body of men.

"The second characteristic was their sense of humble dependence on God, as seen in the prominence given to prayer. Not only were the daily sessions opened and closed with prayer, and often interspersed with prayer for specific objects, but once a day all business was suspended that a day of fasting and prayer might be observed. It seems almost incredible to us that men should have remained continuously in devotional worship from 9 o'clock a. m. to 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon, wrestling with God oftentimes for two hours in unbroken prayer. But in those times, when all the interests of the Kingdom of God seemed to be in peril, men felt their dependence upon God, and when once at the throne of Grace, knew not how to come away until the blessing was obtained. The spirit of prayer was in the very atmosphere of the assembly.

"The third most striking characteristic of the Westminster assembly was their reverence for scripture. The first topic of which the confession treats is the divine inspiration and supreme authority of the scriptures. * * * The cardinal rule of the assembly, adopted for the guidance of all their deliberations, was in these words: 'What any man undertakes to prove as necessary, he shall make good out of scripture; an examination of the published proceedings show that the authority of scripture as the inspired and infallible word of God was in every case bowed to as the arbiter of all controversy and the basis of all belief. The Westminster divines were consumate masters of human philosophy, familiar with all the great schools of human thought, from Plato and Aristotle down to Bacon and Descartes, yet when they sat down to frame these standards their one and only thought was to express the mind of the scriptures. In their whole system of doctrine not even a tinge of human philosophy is apparent. There is not a paragraph in it that offers the slightest hint as to what school of philosophy the assembly favored. Even those questions where scripture and philosophy intermingle were determined always and exclusively on Biblical grounds. The assembly relied never upon metaphysics but always and wholly upon scripture to support its positions. And herein appears the wisdom of that assembly, the wisdom of the Holy Ghost, by which they were guided. Human philosophies are ever changing Consequently any system which builds itself on these supports must soon appear to topple and to need amendment or reconstruction. But the word of God liveth and abideth forever." The structure which is built exclusively upon this is, like it, permanent. In this we find the chief glory of our standards It is for this reason they remain as well suited to the eighteenth and nineteenth as to the seventeenth century. It is for this reason they will need doctrinal revision only when the Bible needs it.

The Bible and our confession stand together. They are always bound together. The greater part of every page in our confession is occupied with the scripture upon which the confessional statement is based, so that every reader can see for himself whether it is in accord with scripture Let me illustrate: and I will illustrate by reading you that part of the confession that has been more attacked than any other part, and that treats of the most mysterious and difficult of all the doctrines of God's Word, viz: Election.

Here Dr. Smith read from the Confession of Faith that section bearing on the doctrine of election and then read the passages of scripture upon which it is based. He stated that, while the Presbyterian Church teaches the doctrine of election, it does no violence to the doctrine of man's free agency, in which it believes as firmly as in election.

"Now I don't say that the confessional statement is palatable. I don't even ask you to say that it is believable, but I do declare that it is scriptural. And whatever explanation you make of the confessional statement will apply equally to the scriptural statement, and vice versa, for one is but the clear and faithful echo of the other. I ask, why do not the opponents of our creed, instead of making the coarse print the text of their abuse, make the fine print, where the same truth is stated in even stronger terms? I'll tell you why. Because it is cheaper and safer to sneer at the confession than to sneer at the Bible, and just because our confession is the completest and faithfulest statement of scriptural truth in existence, therefore it has borne and will continue to bear the brunt of the fight for the integrity of God's truth. The confession doesn't explain the deep mysteries of God's truth. It simply states them because it finds them in the Bible. It knows there is an explanation, an explanation clear enough to the mind of God, that, when given, will vindicate both His wisdom and His goodness. But until that explanation is given it is content to take God at His word and to say to all the world, as Calvinism ever says, 'Let God be true and every man a liar.'

"And now let me close with two exhortations. The first is, do not be distressed at what you read in the papers about the proposed revisions of the confession. * * * When it comes to verbal revision, the case is different. * * * This revision I myself should be glad to see made, but not now, when our confession is under fire. Every yellow journal in the country would herald it abroad as a doctrinal surrender. And we would simply exchange one set of slanders for another.

"My other exhortation is, let not man's heart fear because of the attacks upon our church. Every true church of Christ thrives on persecution. Truth, like a torch, the more it's shook, the more it shines. This concentration upon our slanders will not hurt us in the end; it will do us good It will cause people to study our creed and to see for themselves whether or not it is scriptural Let's illustrate: The famous Woodrow controversy in our Southern Church lasted five years and brought on us unlimited abuse from free thinkers in seminary chairs, sensational pulpits and sectional papers. But figures show that the growth of our church during the five years was twice as great as during the preceding five, and that growth was most remarkable in the Synod of South Carolina, where the agitation was greatest. The year after the Briggs trial, in the Northern Presbyterian Church, saw that church's baptism of fire. The Northern church in that controversy stood squarely up for ministerial honesty and divine truth, and the next year was marked by the largest increase in membership in the history of that church. * * * Our Southern Presbyterian church is looked upon by free thinkers as the most narrow, hide-bound and conservative church in this country. In these days of loose thinking it is intolerant of new isms. It does stand square and flat-footed upon its old-fashioned Bible creed. And that may be the reason why the Southern Presbyterian church, since 1890, has grown by a larger per centage of increase than any other of the four great white denominations of this country."

The Boy Was Benefited.

"The other afternoon," said the man in the box office of a theater, "a boy came to me and said, 'Are these any good?' and I took from him two front row seats for that night which had been torn into a hundred pieces or so and then cleverly pasted together again. 'Oh, yes, my child. But how did this strange accident happen to the tickets?'

"The boy replied: 'Why, papa came home with them last night and showed them to mamma, and he seemed to be in such good humor somehow that mamma thought it would be a good time then to tell him how she owed over $100 for provisions. She told him of it, but he got so mad that he said that every night now he wouldn't come home till after 12 o'clock, and he told me for heaven's sake when I got married to look out for a sensible woman. All the time mamma laughed, and he was getting madder, and so he said she wouldn't go to the theater with him after that, and he tore the tickets up and rushed out somewhere alone. He ain't back yet either, but mamma don't care. I picked up the pieces off the carpet and pasted them together, and if you'll exchange the tickets for matinee ones I guess I'll come down on Saturday with some other fellow and take in the show.'

"I gave other tickets to the candid kid, and he walked away very well pleased with himself."—Philadelphia Record.

Nerves and Hair Picking.

"Persons whose nerves are in any way out of gear should not pick hair," observed a well known specialist in nervous diseases to a reporter, "and indeed I am almost willing to go further and to say that they should not handle mattresses or pillows stuffed with hair. The tactile nerves, the nerves that are located in the ends of the fingers, seem to be specially affected by handling of hair or animal wools of any kind.

"Many good housewives do themselves great injury in picking hair in the repair or alteration of mattresses, and, while they think they will save money by doing such work themselves, they often find out that, besides the personal suffering in consequence, they pay out many times in doctors' and medicine bills what they save from mattress makers.

"I know of some persons, men more frequently than women, however, who would be thrown into nervous spasms if they were compelled to handle velvet for 15 minutes—that is, to handle it on the fuzzy or velvety side. Those who are unpleasantly affected by velvet know it and therefore avoid it as much as possible."—Washington Star.

The Spider and the Tuning Fork.

A gentleman was recently watching some spiders, when it occurred to him to try what effect the sound of a tuning fork would have upon them. He suspected that they would take it for the buzzing of a fly. He selected a large, ugly spider that had been feasting on flies for about two months. The spider was at one edge of its web. Sounding the fork, the man touched a thread at the other side and watched the result.

Mr. Spider had the buzzing sound conveyed to him over his telephone wires, but how was he to know on which particular wire it was traveling? He ran to the center of the web very quickly and felt around until he touched the thread against the other end of which the fork was sounding; then, taking another thread along, just as a man would take an extra piece of rope, he ran out to the fork and sprang upon it. Then he retreated a little way and looked at the fork. He was puzzled. He had expected to find a buzzing fly. Then, strange to say, he got on the fork again and danced with delight. Evidently the sound was music to him.

A Kansas Blizzard.

"When a real Kansas blizzard starts," said a native of the state, "the snow at first is usually soft and fine and comes down with an ominous quiet. Then it increases in volume, and a wild wind hurls it along. It is blinding and enveloping, and, aside from being freezing cold, one cannot but lose his way. The storm sometimes lasts two or three days. When one of these blizzards comes up, the farmer who wants to get from his farmhouse to the stable or milkhouse takes a cord and starts for the stable or milkhouse, as it may be, even if it is only 50 yards off. He seldom makes it the first time, and the cord is to keep him from getting lost and wandering in the snow. Sometimes the people stand in the door and beat a tin can for a signal to any one who may be out in the storm, but this is of little use, as the noise of the wind is so great that it drowns almost every other sound.

"I know of a case of a man who got lost going from his stable to the house, so swiftly and blindingly did the storm whirl down upon him. He stumbled over the entrance to a cyclone cellar and crawled in there and dropped the door after him to keep out the snow. The snow fell faster and faster and buried the door so deeply that when it was all ended and he tried to open it he found it impossible. His family searched the country around for him, and it was not until the snow had melted and gone and some one happened to go into the cyclone cellar that he was found there."—New York Tribune.

PROXIMITY MILLS SHUT DOWN.

LABOR UNION SAID TO BE THE CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.

About Five Hundred Operatives Were Locked Out This Morning—Both Sides of the Question.

When the employees of the Proximity Manufacturing Company started to work this morning they found the following notice posted at the gates:

"This mill will be shut down until further notice. All employees may consider themselves discharged. All wages will be paid at the office after twelve oclock.

"Proximity Manufacturing Co.,
"By CEASAR CONE, Prest."

It was first reported down street that there had been a strike of the operatives, but it developed that the company shut down the mills of its own volition and that it came as a great surprise to the employees.

The employees, or at least those seen by the Telegram, say the trouble is caused by a desire on the part of the company to refuse to recognize a labor union. About a week ago a branch of the National Textile Union was organized at Proximity with a charter membership of 162. By the end of the week the membership had increased to 300. A member stated that the union was organized for mutual protection and for the betterment of the condition of the operatives, and that no demands nor threats, neither for higher wages or shorter hours, had been made.

Mr. Ceasar Cone, president of the company, had conferences with several of the union men, who say they stated to him that no threats or demands would be made, nor would any violence or injury be done any property or any person. At these conferences Mr. Cone threatened to discharge no employe, but spoke of the trouble and inconvenience always caused by strikes. He referred to recent trouble in mills at Burlington and Lexington, and asked his men if they had ever known the condition of operatives to be improved by a strike.

In response to a question as to whether any employe of the Proximity Manufacturing Company was dissatisfied with the amount of wages received, Mr. Cone was told that some of the operatives did not make enough to support themselves and families.

A union man tells the Telegram that there are men with from four to seven in family who do not make over 90 cents a day operating four looms. Others, including men, women and children, receive from 15 cents to $1.50 a day, the latter amount being paid loom-fixers. The Telegram was shown a time slip which showed that a man, in thirteen days time, had weaved 46 cuts of cloth, for which he was paid 20 cents a cut, amounting to $9.20. During the time he had taken up $8.00 at the company's store, leaving him $1 20 to apply to house rent, which still left him in debt to the company $1 20. It is such conditions as these, the operative say, which has created dissatisfaction among the employes.

The same man tells the Telegram that about 1,000 persons are affected by the lock-out, about 500 of whom are operatives. He censured the action of the company in having a deputy sheriff go out to guard the property, saying they were law-abiding and had no desire nor intention to do violence.

In reply to a question, several of the union men stated that they would refuse to return to work until their differences were adjused, and added that they would receive aid and support from the National Textile Union.

The above statements were all made by members of the union.

THE COMPANY'S SIDE.

Upon inquiry at the office of the company this afternoon the Telegram reporter was told that last week the management heard rumors of considerable dissatisfaction among the hands. The officers immediately began an investigation and questioned a large number of employees. The Telegram was told that from the most important to the humblest in the mill of whom inquiry was made, to a man, expressed themselves as perfectly satisfied, in fact, several acknowledged they were getting along better and saving more money than ever before, but several intimated that there were others who were not satisfied with their positions.

The managers of the company, in their desire to learn if possible where the trouble is and who are the dissatisfied ones, decided on the course indicated by the notice at the head of this article.

We hope the trouble will be satisfactorily arranged, and the mills started up again soon.

Meeting at Grace Church.

A congregational meeting took the place of the regular preaching service yesterday morning, the purpose of which was to consider some important financial matters. A goodly sum was subscribed towards paying a balance on the heater and repairs to the church.

The pastor, Rev. Mr. Johnson, at the instance of the advisory committee, has agreed to rest during the summer for his health's sake, and the services of Rev. H. J. Hartsell has been secured for the next few months. Mr. Hartsell is a graduate of Western Maryland College and at present a student at Westminister Theological Seminary. The faculty of the college and the seminary speak highly of Mr. Hartsell, and consider him a young man of ability, who gives promise of becoming very useful in the calling which he has entered.

MONDAY, MAY 7 1900.

The Washington officials are speculating as to whether Aguinaldo is dead or alive. More than one incident has arisen to sugg st that the ideas of the officials at Washington are about as misty regarding the Philippines as are those of the average citizen.

The Heliograph is the name of a new paper to be issued every morning in Winston-Salem by Messrs. N. E. and J. G. Pepper, the first issue tomorrow morning. If these gentlemen put as much originality in their paper as they have in its name it will be a live one.

In the May Century, Rev. Chas. F. Thwing, president of the Western Reserve University, writes about the ignorance of the Bible by college students. We have heard that this is not the only subject of which the average college student is in a due amount of ignorance.

In an anonymous poster, headed the "Greensboro Citizen," issued late Saturday afternoon in support of the citizen's ticket, it was intimated that articles in support of this movement and in vindication of its leaders, had been submmitted to the city Democratic papers and had been refused publication. So far as the Telegram is concerned, this is not the case. We published the only artic'e that was submitted to us and stated to one of the leaders of the movement that we would publish anything he wished to say. We do not make this statement for any particular reason more than it is a fact and facts are usually good things.

We stated our belief, some days ago, that even if the constitutional amendment were defeated by a decision of the courts, the final result would but be delayed, inasmuch as the sentiment of the country is coming around to the point that the suffrage must at least be partially purified. In a discussion of Rev. J. W. Stagg's recent speech in New Bedford, Mass., on the negro question of the South, the Standard, of that city says:

It is within a comparatively few weeks that The Outlook, a journal of advanced social, economic and religious thought, made an elaborate argument concerning the right of suffrage, a practical application of which would disfranchise a good share of the voters of this country, North and South. Ten years ago, the article would have set ablaze no end of indignation North and South. So far as we have noted, only one paper troubled to say a word in reply—and that an organ of what is usually rated as a crank idea.

In this we certainly see confirmation of our opinion, as well as in the Standard's further statement that Massachusetts has the same problem that North Carolina has, except that ours is black and hers is white.

NORTHERN CAPITAL IN THE SOUTH

Signficance of Reported Mill Purchases by Northern Men.

Philadelphia Record.

The reported purchase of a number of cotton mills in the South by Northern capitalists is full of significance. It means the recognition by Northern cotton mill experts of the fact that the section in which the raw material is produced is also the one in which it may be most advantageously converted into the manufactured article.

As was shown recently by Director Wilson, of the Philadelphia Commercial Museum, while the United States—or, rather a few Southern States,—export the bulk of raw cotton of the world, they have less than one-twentieth of the world's share of the export trade in manufactured cottons. It is evident, therefore, that the Southern cotton mills have an opportunity for great commercial expansion in this direction. The capitalists indicates that the latter understand the situation. If well directed and persistent efforts should be made to secure a proper share of the world's trade a demand would be created for the product of the Southern mills which would not only warrant the quadrupling of their number but would inevitably react so favorably upon the price of cotton as to assure continuous prosperity to the South.

The matter is one in which Philadelphia is and other Northern manufacturing cities are interested. Though the time is coming when the South will manufacture large quantities of articles other than the finished products of iron and cotton, her special activity in these two branches will engage her chief attention for a long time to come. As a consequence a very large proportion of her supplies of manufactured goods must continue to be purchased from the North, and there will be more ready cash with which to purchase them.

Pat Bender and His Irish Chums in a Riot With Old Jack, a Negro Blind-Tiger.

H. E. C. Bryant, in Charlotte Observer.

Some time before the United States decided to fight Spain, in 1898, there came to Greensboro several Irish hoboes. Being tired of the road they secured work in one of our cotton mills around town. But, just as soon as volunteers were called for the patriotic and courageous sons of old Ireland and adopted children of America, enlisted in the company of Captain Percy Gray of that place, to fight the Spaniards. Like all Irishmen these boys "loiked a leetle fun a bit of rum" now and then. Three of these wearers of the green went together all the time. They were led by the notorious Pat Bender, of the Second Regiment of North Carolina. Maj. B. F. Dixon, candidate for State Auditor, tells some good stories on Bender.

One story runs like this: "We were located at Land's End," said the major, "and I was having considerable trouble with the old soldiers for drinking whiskey. 'Old Jack,' a negro inhabitant of Land's End, was furnishing the whiskey. I found it out and had him call at my headquarters one day. I told him that it must be stopped for the sake of the soldiers and for his own safety. I said: "Some of these days Jack, if you don't mind a party of soldiers will get drunk and kill you. Now you must stop selling whiskey." He promised that he would never sell any more.

"One night, some time after I had admonished Old Jack, I discovered a riot in the neighborhood of his house. I hurried there and found about 75 armed soldiers attacking a squad of negroes. Beer bottles, rocks and sticks were flying thick and fast in the direction of the negro houses. When the soldiers saw me approaching they fled to the woods. On taking in the situation I saw that four negroes lay stretched on the ground as still as corpses and Old Jack rolled and tumbled within his cabin with a slight fracture in his skull and a quantity of glass in the side of his head. Somebody had literally knocked him senseless with a heavy beer bottle. As soon as the soldiers had fled the negroes on the ground, who had feigned death rather than get up to be knocked down again, arose and sought my protection. I had Old Jack's wounds dressed and ordered a trial for the soldiers who were suspected of being the promoters of the riot. I was satisfied that Pat Bender and his companions were the ring leaders.

At the appointed time next morning all the witnesses were on hand, even to Bender, who looked as pious and as innocent as a student of divinity. He took the witness stand and I asked him to tell what he knew of the riot He said: 'Please your honor, major, I was slaping in me tent as swate as an ainfant an' I hurd a great racket up at Old Jack's house. Thought the boys must be in trouble so I took me gun an' went up to hilp them. Just as I got there I saw Old Jack's head pop up an' somebody shied a beer bottle at him and he sat down.

"'Another nagur come a runnin' loike he wus a-going to run straight over me an' I niver loike to have a nagur run roight over the top iv me, you know. So I gave him one on the jaw an' he went to grass. 'Bout that toime you an' Captain Gray come up an' spoilt the fun.'

"The whole truth of the affair, as I afterwards learned was that Bender started the fight, knocked Jack with the bottle and knocked down all the other negroes in sight.'

While Bender was in camp at Raleigh Mr. Skinner, superintendent of the farm at the Agricultural and Mechanical College, lost a valuable hammock from his front porch one night. By scattering bits of evidence that he gathered here and there he traced the hammock to the camp of the soldiers. Three Irish soldiers had gone out on the street car with a certain conductor and left near Mr. Skinner's house just about the time the hammock disappeared. Later the same street car conductor had seen the same three men dragging something that looked very much like a hammock. The were other witnesses who could almost swear that the Irishmen were Bender and his chums.

Mr. Skinner reported the matter to Maj. Dixon and while they were standing talking Bender passed by with the very same hammock under his arm. He was going to an old out-house near by for a quiet nap. Maj. Dixon accosted him: "Bender, where did you get that hammock?" Politely giving the salute he answered: "Yes major, I bought it from a nagur fur a pint of corn liquor." Maj Dixon made him give it to Mr. Skinner and summonded him up for trial next morning. The testimony of Skinner, the street car conductor and others made him guilty, but his Irish brethren swore that he was in camp sleeping at the time the hammock was stolen from Mr. Skinner porch. On the promise that he would behave well in the future, Maj. Dixon suspended the case against Bender, who saluted, and said: "Thank you koindly, major, and I am your most obaidient servant, but don't you thoink that Mister Skinner should give me back me point of corn whiskey?"

While on duty Maj. Dixon said that Bender was a good soldier. He was always willing and ready. But, whenever he was free from duty he went on a lark.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Dunivent is quite sick from an attack of cholera morbus.

No Cur—No Pay.

That is the way all druggists sell Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic for Chills and Malaria. It is simply iron and quinine in a tasteless form. Children love it. Adults prefer it to bitter, nauseating tonics. Price, 50c.

SCROFULA The Blighting Disease of Heredity.

In many respects Scrofula and Consumption are alike; they develop from the same general causes, both are hereditary and dependent upon an impure and impovished blood supply. In consumption the disease fastens itself upon the lungs; in Scrofula the glands of the neck and throat swell and suppurate, causing ugly running sores; the eyes are inflamed and weak; there is an almost continual discharge from the ears, the limbs swell, bones ache, and white swelling is frequently a result, causing the diseased bones to work out through the skin, producing indescribable pain and suffering. Cutting away a sore or diseased gland does no good; the blood is poisoned. The old scrofulous taint which has probably come down through several generations has polluted every drop of blood.

Scrofula requires vigorous, persistent treatment. The blood must be brought back to a healthy condition before the terrible disease can be stopped in its work of destruction. Mercury, potash and other poisonous minerals usually given in such cases do more harm than good; they ruin the digestion and leave the system in a worse condition than before.

S. S. S. is the only medicine that can reach deep-seated blood troubles like Scrofula. It goes down to the very roots of the disease and forces every vestige of poison out of the blood. S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known. The roots and herbs from which it is made contain wonderful blood purifying properties, which no poison, however powerful, can long resist. S. S. S. stimulates and purifies the blood, increases the appetite, aids the digestion and restores health and strength to the enfeebled body. If you have reason to think you have Scrofula, or your child has inherited any blood taint, don't wait for it to develop, but begin at once the use of S. S. S. It is a fine tonic and the best blood purifier and blood builder known, as it contains no poisonous minerals. S. S. S. is pre-eminently a remedy for children

SAVE THE CHILDREN.

When my daughter was an infant she had a severe case of Scrofula, for which she was under the constant care of physicians for more than two years. She was worse at the end of that time, however, and we almost despaired of her life. A few bottles of Swift's Specific cured her completely, as it seemed to go direct to the cause of the trouble. I do not believe it has an equal for stubborn cases of blood diseases which are beyond the power of other so-called blood remedies. S. I. BROOKS, Monticello, Ga.

Our medical department is in charge of experienced physicians who have made Scrofula and other blood diseases a life study. Write them about your case, or any one you are interested in. Your letter will receive prompt and careful attention. We make no charge whatever for this.

To Organize Republican Clubs.

The Republicans are to put up a stiff fight in Guilford county this year, if organization counts for anything. A part of their campaign will consist in work done through Republican clubs, which will be organized in every township in the county. These clubs will be organized under the direction of Dr. Warren Vines Hall, of Republican headquarters.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of siatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

The shock and strain of being fired from a cannon daily through a circus season, would seem to be extraordinary. But it is not nearly so wearing upon the average woman's nervous system, as the strain and drain of the every day life of the married woman, It is not the great shock of the storm which wears the stone but the "continual dropping," So in woman's life it is not the great demands upon her energy which wear her out, but the interminable leakage of her strength through the diseases that affect the delicate womanly organs.

To stop this ceaseless leakage of strength is as much the desire as the duty of women. It can be done once and for all by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine is not a cure-all but it is specially designed for a specific purpose, the cure of the chronic diseases peculiar to women. It dries up the drains, allays inflammations, heals the ulcerations and cures the displacements which are at the bottom of woman's miseries.

There is neither opium, cocaine or other narcotic contained in "Favorite Prescription."

"For five years my wife was in an almost helpless condition, suffering from female weakness," writes J. S. Everitt, Esq. of Hagerman, Washington Co., Fla. "Last September I decided to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. She took several bottles of the medicine and gave birth to a ten pound son on January 31st, 1900. She is now sound and well and doing her housework."

THE AWFUL FAMINE IN INDIA.

ABOUT 93,500,000 PEOPLE ARE IN DISTRESS.

The Flood of Chaalty in the Shape of Gold and Grain, Only a Drop in the Ocean.

The report that cholera is strengthening its deadly hold on famine-stricken India, brings the pitiful condition of that country more than ever to the public view. About 93,500,000 persons, for this is the population of the district affected, are sweltering their squalid existences away amid pestilence and misery that show no signs of abating. Hundreds of thousands of pounds in good British gold, good German marks and American coin, have been thrown into the country, but, judging from the latest advices, all this charity is merely a drop in the ocean. The famine and its attendant complications appear to exceed in virulence any previous visitations. The Viceroy, Lord Curzon, of Kedleston, and the government are making ceaseless exertions to meet the terrible emergency, but the stupendous difficulty confronting them prevent the present supplying of relief to more than 5,000,000. In the meantime the native states are dotted with heaps of dead and dying and the roads are crowded with ghastly bands seeking to escape from the stricken territories, but who, for lack of food and water mostly succumb in the attempt. One of the most hopeless features of the whole affair is contained in the statement of a special correspondent at Simla, who writes: "Ten times the total relief could be laid out in a single district without fully relieving its distress. All we can hope for is a succession of good years to put the people on their legs again."

The British districts are reported to be so far escaping the large starvation and mortality that mark the native states. But that their condition is not enviable is evident from the following description sent by a Bombay correspondent of the scene at Ahmedabad, a city in the presidency of Bombay:

In an open space upwards of 200 seated, old and young, living famine pers nifi d. The smell arising from their filthy rags was sickening, and had attracted myriads of flies Some especially the old men, were bony frameworks. A girl suckling two children was ghastly to look at, but the little ones, with hollow temples, sunken eyes and cheeks, and the napes of their necks falling in under their skulls, which seemed to overbalance their emaciated bodies, and with wisp-like arms and legs were more dreadful still. Many were suffering from disease and numbers had the fever. Those who could work were sent on where tanks were being dug They were given meat and passed on to the poor house. This picture is from a less seriously affected part of the country. The sufferings in the remorter districts, where the famine is severe, where all the cattle have long since died, where the water is precious and where cholera has now added its dread scourge, can will be imagined.

WINE OF CARDUI

Woman Knows Woman.

ZURICH, KAN., Jan. 31.
I used Wine of Cardui for nervousness and weakness in the womb. After taking one bottle I was well again. I am a midwife and always recommend Wine of Cardui to my lady friends during pregnancy and after birth as a tonic. Every lady who takes it finds that it does even more than is claimed for it.
MRS. V. M. BOISVERT.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Nobody knows woman like woman. Men go to medical colleges, study books and listen to lectures. They learn indirectly of the diseases of women, but they are men and can never fully understand the ailments, the sufferings, the agonies of mothers, wives and sisters. A woman knows. Mrs. Boisvert knows. She has passed through the trials and tribulations of her sex. She has been near by when her sisters suffered. She has seen them relieved and cured with Wine of Cardui. Is it any wonder she recommends it? Is it any wonder that thousands of other women recommend it. They know. They have actual experience to prompt them. They spread the tidings from mouth to mouth, telling how Wine of Cardui helps young girls, helps the weak of all ages, helps and cures all womanly ills.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED BY

"DANGER IN THE EARTH AND AIR; DANGER EVERYWHERE."

A Wise and Venerable Doctor Talks about Advanced Science.

In a leading hotel, in a great city, a famous and aged physician was conversing. Listening to his wise and sententious discourse, were a group of well dressed men, evidently lawyers, business men and commercial travelers.

My firm belief, is "that medical science is certain yet to show that all diseases without exception are caused by invisible germs which are living organisms. Here is the germ of that terrible disease diphtheria. Here is the bacillus of typhoid fever; and here is the still more dreadful bacillus of tubercle which causes that most destructive of all diseases, consumption. This of that very common and supposed incurable disease, catarrh."

"I wish, Doctor," said the traveling man, "that you would tell us about catarrh. I have had it for years, and I am thoroughly discouraged."

The Doctor answered. "Catarrh, like diphtheria, consumption, typhoid fever, and a host of other diseases, is the result of a microbe invading the blood and attacking specially the mucous membrane. This foul and most disgusting disease is especially prevalent in the United States and it is rare to meet one who is not, or has not been troubled more or less with it. How often is he or she obliged to remain at home from pleasant entertainments, deprive themselves of many intellectual treats, from fear of the disagreeable odor arising from catarrhal affections. In its worst phase, the patient becomes loathsome both to himself and his friends.

"I believe," continued this great physician, "that the true way to heal catarrh is to medicate the blood. This can be done only by powerful alteratives which act as blood purifiers."

Betsy A. Marett, of Manistee, Manistee Co., Mich., writes:

Dear Sirs:—For ten years I was a sufferer from general debility and chronic catarrh. My face was pale as death. I was weak and short of breath. I could hardly walk, I was so dizzy and had a ringing in my head all the time. My hands and feet were always cold. My appetite was very poor. On getting up in the morning, my head swam so I was often obliged to lie down again. I had awful pains in the small of my back. I had a continual feeling of tiredness. My muscular power was almost entirely gone, and I couldn't go half a dozen steps without stopping to rest, and often that much exercise caused me to have a pain in my side. It seemed as though the blood had left my veins. The doctors said my blood had all turned to water. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I tried the best physicians in the state, but failed to get any relief. My husband got me a bottle of Johnston's Sarsaparilla. I took it, and then I bought another. When these had been used, I was somewhat improved in health. I continued its use, and felt I was growing stronger; my sleep was refreshing, and it seemed as if I could feel new blood moving through my veins. I kept on taking it, and now consider myself as well and rugged woman. I work all the time, and am happy. I am positive that the Sarsaparilla saved my life. The sick headaches I have had since childhood, have disappeared, and my catarrh has almost entirely left me. I cannot be too thankful for what Johnston's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I recommend all women who have sick headaches to use your Sarsaparilla.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and others. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

RHEUMATISM—CATARRAH—DISEASES CURED BY B. B. B.

It is the deep-seated, obstinate cases of catarrh and rheumatism that B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) cures. It matters not what other treatments, doctors, sprays, liniments, medicated air, blood purifiers, have failed to do, B. B. THE WAR LIKELY TO CONTINUE

Officials Think Aguinaldo's Death Would Not End the Philippine Insurrection.

Washington Special to New York Hearld.

Whether Aguinaldo be dead or alive it is evident to officials of the War Department that the Fillipinos are pursuing a policy of warfare best adopted to prolonging the rebellion.

Assistant Secretary of War Meiklejohn voiced the sentiment of the Department when he expressed the opinion that Aguinaldo was alive. There is a disposition on the part of the officials to discredit Aguinaldo's abilities and Mr. Meiklejoan said that the capture of Mabini, who was alleged to be the civil brains of the Fillipino movement for independence, and of Filipino leaders who are its military minds were greater losses to their cause than is generally appreciated. It has been the impression of the officials that the capture or death of Aguinaldo would mean the death knell of the war, but it is now apparent to them that whether Aguinaldo be dead or alive the guerilla fighting will continue, and probabably continue for some time.

While in some quarters the belief is expressed that the insurgents will attempt to reorganize during the rainy season Lieutenant Colonel Barry, who was adjutant-general on General Otis' staff, pointed out that the troops are well distributed in Luzon and within striking distance of any point where the Filipinos may congregate Lieut nant Colonel Barry added that wherever the Filipinos may congratulate. Lieutenant Colonel Barry added that wherever the Filipinos could go the American troops had demonstrated that they could follow.

To prevent the success of the guerilla tactics of the Filipinos commanding officers in the Pailippines have issued orders to their subordinates directing them to use the utmost care to guard against surprise when on detached duty. Only detachments which are sufficiently strong to cope with any bands of Filipinos that may be met will be sent on expeditions hereafter.

VERMONT'S LOST VOTE.

Still Held by a Former Senate Page, Now a New York Lawyer

In The Pathfinder of April 28th David S. Barry, the Washington corsespondent of the New York Sun, revels now, after a lapse of twenty-three years, the circumstances connected with the mysterious disappearance of Vermont's electoral vote in the contest following the close presidential election of 1876, which was settled in favor of Hayes by the electoral commission. Mr. Barry writes from personal knowledge, as he was one of the Senate pages in that exciting period. He knew intimately the Senate page, McNeir, who carried the missing electoral package from a Senate official's desk to Abram S. Hewitt, the distinguished New York member of the house.

Mr. Barry describes the strange situation caused by the tardy arrival of one of the packets containing Vermont's vote, the refusal of the president of the Senate to receive it, and how the messenger got it into Hewitt's hands, thus causing and all-night pow wow of congress. All this time McFeir, the page was held in the lobby as a prisoner of state. Finally, after the reception of the vote was refused by congress, it appears the imprisoned McNeir, on being released, still held possession of Vermont's vote, since no one would receive it. He took it home with him and keeps to this day in his home at New York, where he is a prosperous lawyer. Thus an incomplete chapter of American political history is closed in The Pathfinder article.

MAJOR PITCHER A GAY JUDGE.

He Ruins a Bull Fighter's Business by Cutting Off His Queue.

Havana, May 5—The recent decision of Major Pitcher, sitting as a judge in a police court, in sentencing Jose Macalvo, a Spanish bull-fighter to pay a fine of $10 and to have his hair cut, has kicked up a fine row in all the Havana papers. Macalvo wore a coleta, which is a queue worn by all bull-fighters, without which they cannot go into the ring.

Macalvo stopped off at Havana on his way to Mexico, where he had a contrat as a bull-fighter. He got drunk and was hauled before Major Pitcher, who fined him $10. As Macalvo was leaving the court Major Pitcher noticed the coleta and ordered it cut off, which was done, despite Macalvo's protests. The bull-fighter declares that he cannot follow his vocation now until the coleta grows again, and he has consulted a lawyer about suing the government for the amount of damages he has sustained. The newspapers, which are unfriendly anyway to Major Pitcher's court, cite this act as an unwarrantable infringement of personal liberty and unblushing use of military power. La Lucha sagely remarks that the "Pitcher has gone too often to the well."

Mrs. Lamb Burned.

About 8 o'clock Saturday night, some of the neighbors adjoining the residence of Mr. Fred Lamb, who lives in the rear of the old Methodist graveyard in one of the houses owned by Mr. Jno. Hodgin, became alarmed on smelling rags burning, and on investigation discovered Mr. Lamb's mother on the bed burning, she is badly burned, and being quite aged, the chances are very unfaorable for her. Dr. Turner hastened to her relief, and the neighbors have done all they could to alleviate her suffering She is now lying in a very critical condition. The supposition is that she had epilepsy. She had been complaining for several days, and has been subjected to epilepsy. She fell in the fire while cooking.

The "R. G Society," consisting of sixteen couples, went out to Donnell's pond this morning on a picnic.

BENBOW PROPERTY SOLD.

Charles D. Benbow Purchases the Entire Amount.

The property of Dr. D. W. C. Benbow, which has been in litigation for several years, was sold at the courthouse at noon by C. P. Frazier, commissioner. Mr. Charles D. Benbow, of Pinehurst, became the purchaser of all the property, both town and county, at a total price of about $142,000. This is regarded as a very fair price, as the property has been variously estimated to be worth from $80,000 to $150,000.

The greatest amount paid for any separate piece was paid for the property from the corner of South Elm and Sycamore streets to Bendheim's store, having a frontage of 255 feet. It was bid off for $40,000, which is $150 a front foot. The property on the opposite side of the street, known as the "herring row," sold for $14,000. The property between the McAdoo House and the Odell Hardware Company sold for $15,000.

The sale will come up for confirmation at the June term of Superior Court.

Next to the Consumer is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking post, as it were, in regard to prices.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. Your children will be glad to build at double the price it now costs you. It is a trite, but true saying, if you want to build, "Now is the time."

And ours is the place to get the stuff.
